

Becoming a hero is not easy. Life as a wandering warrior come fresh out of the desert is one thing. But life as a hero, one who stands up for those being oppressed? That's something else entirely. In the latest action-packed film from George Miller, Mad Max: Fury Road, Charlize Theron plays Imperator Furiosa, who leads an army of women on the electric war rig called The Immortan Joe's War Rig in rebellion against her tyrannical master. Action superstar Tom Hardy joins the cast as Max Rockatansky, Furiosa's right-hand man, in this spectacular action film set in the furthest reaches of our planet, in a world where humanity is broken, and life exists at the cost of your own. At the intersection of muscle, Mad Max: Fury Road is an oddity among action films. It has no special effects (with the exception of some practical effects). There is no gunpowder or gunfire explosions. It has few cars and little action with motor racing being one of its focuses. The film begins with Max being suddenly awoken by a mysterious noise. He finds himself on a desert road with only his car to get home. He decides to go back to sleep, but once he is awakened again, he comes across a war rig of sorts. A WOMAN (Charlize Theron) stands at the hood of his car and says "Time to get back on the road". He gets in the car with her and they find themselves on the way.

In 2014, Warner Bros. Pictures announced that George Miller was in talks for a possible sequel, with Miller describing the film as an origin story which would take place in a dystopian future where much of humanity has been decimated by machines. In 2018 it was reported that Miller had begun writing the script for Mad Max: The Wasteland. The film will be the fourth installment in the "Mad Max" franchise and is intended to be a female-centric film. It was said to have a budget of $100 million, making it one of the most expensive female-led action films ever made. In 2017, Tom Hardy said that he had signed on for three more Mad Max movies following Mad Max: Fury Road. The idea behind the Mad Max series is that each movie stands alone and tells its own story, like Clint Eastwood's Dirty Harry or Charles Bronson's Death Wish series. Hardy is now expected to appear in three "Mad Max" films. Miller is also planning a spin-off film about the character of War Boy, with Charlize Theron's Imperator Furiosa looking after him.
